

RSARS RALLY REPORTS No. 81

The Holsworthy - North Devon) Rally – 3rd November 2013

The Holsworthy, (North Devon), Rally was held on Sunday 3rd November, in appalling weather conditions, though the weather improved when it was time to go home.

There were 42 x 4ft Traders/Society tables altogether, with 26 Traders and Society Representatives, and 10 Stewards. There were 125 people through the door, the low number no doubt due to the weather conditions, and also people in various locations had a serious amount of work to do repairing damage from the recent high winds and heavy rain. A great pity, but nothing that could be rectified.

Buying was slow, but I got the impression that people have other priorities at the moment. I had a fair number of visitors to sign the book, but they were non and non-prospective Members. Still, I can always hope for better things at the Plymouth Rally on 24th November. It is the last Rally of the year round here, so people might be more inspired.

Heavy rain and high winds with a low temperature is not good motivating weather. People don't seem to believe me when I say that "If it's raining, it's good for working."
